ELIGIBILITY

Applicant must be a screenwriter and/or writer/director of at least 1 short film that has screened in international film festivals.

Applicant must be of Southeast Asian nationality, origin or residence.

Applicant must not have made a feature length film before.

Project submitted should still be at an early stage, and have not been developed beyond a treatment or first draft screenplay.

If you have submitted a project for a prior edition of the film lab, the application should show a significant development from the previous application.

DEFINITIONS

A feature-length screenplay is a work of fiction or non-fiction that serves as the blueprint for a film that equals or exceeds 60 minutes in length including opening and end credits.

A treatment outlines the story of a project in a manner more detailed than the synopsis and reads like a short story, told in the present tense and describing events as they happen and may include details of directorial style.

An estimated production budget states how much it will cost to make a project from development through to completion. The budget should reflect the expected expenses incurred in all the different departments, including but not limited to actor's fees, equipment rental, art department, location expenses, and post production. This should reflect what the project should cost to make, not what you want it to cost.

DEADLINE

All entries must contain: a completed submission form, portfolio screener and project information. Submissions should reach us no later than Monday, 24 August 2020, 6.00pm (GMT+8).
